VIRGINIA MILITARY INSTITUTE OUTLOOK

Fifty Candidates for Team Have Already Reported—Six Veterans Are Available This Fall.

LEXINGTON, Va., Sept. 22.—During the last week fifty cadets of the Virginia Military Institute have been engaged in football practice. The work is hard, as many are trying to make the team. The material is good and the interest high. Six of last season's team and substitutes are back. They are Tallaferrro (captain), Stude, Riley, Bockner, Frazier, Massey, and Caffee. Coach W. W. Roper, of Princeton, has the men in charge, with Capt. I. Branch Johnson, tactical officer of the military staff, who graduated from the Virginia

Military Institute, and was captain of the football team and also captain of the University of Virginia football team two years ago, and played on the varsity last year. L. H. Phister is cadet manager, and Capt. M. B. Corse, graduate manager.

SPORTING NOTES.

Pat O'Rourke, of Harlem, who is matched to meet Joe Jeannette, the colored middleweight, for twenty rounds next Saturday before a private club up New York State, is fast rounding into form for the mill. As both O'Rourke and Jeannette are good hitters and clever for big men, a fast bout is looked for.

Both Gus Ruhlin and John Wille, who were matched to meet for twenty rounds on September 26, at Salt Lake City, will keep on training in the hope of pulling off their bout at some other place. Sheriff Emery, of Salt Lake City, informed the men that if they stepped into a ring he would arrest them. Managers of both men are trusting to get another place to pull off the go.

Merry Lark won the third renewal of the Hindoo Stakes. Hurstbourne won in 1903 and Stalwart was first last year.

What Do You Pay Your Money For

A Washington man drifted into a swell New York restaurant last week and ordered a lunch of pork and beans, rolls and coffee. When he had finished the waiter handed him a due bill for 75 cents. "What," exclaimed our friend, as he gasped for breath, "75 cents; why, in Washington a lunch like that would only cost a quarter." "Yes," said the waiter, "but look at the place you're eating in. See that picture over there? that cost $50,000; there's another that cost $40,000 and the one next to it $25,000."

He paid the bill and is still wondering what he got for his extra half dollar.

High rents and all the glitter and dazzle that go with them must be paid for by extra high prices on goods—you can't get away from that—unless you come to The Bieber-Kaufman Stores.
